

Journal of the Society for Information Display

CALL FOR PAPERS

Students submit a paper and become eligible for

The 3rd Annual

JSID Outstanding Student Paper of the Year

AWARD

To be awarded to the Student Author(s) of the most outstanding paper, as determined by the JSID Awards Committee, and published during 2007 in one of the twelve issues of the Journal of the Society for Information Display (JSID).

The 2007 award winner will be selected in December 2007 by the awards committee of JSID. It will be awarded to a published manuscript on the basis of: originality, significance of results, organization and clarity of the article. The award consists of a plaque and a $2000 US Dollar prize, to be shared among all the student authors of the manuscript selected. It will be presented to the winner(s) at one of the international conferences sponsored by the Society for Information Display. All manuscripts published in JSID during 2007, which are authored by one or more students are eligible whose names appear as first authors. The plaque and prize is given to students only. The Journal publishes all manuscripts in full color. Page charges are waived for all papers authored by students. Detailed instructions for the submission of manuscripts may be found at www.sid.org, or authors may contact the Editor for additional information by sending e-mail to editor@sid.org.